Rajasthan, Jammu and Kashmir and Assam. The process of selection and training of ASHAs in these states are in progress.

(c) The provision of services in the Community Health Centres is envisaged to be upgraded to the levels of Indian Public Health Standards. The IPHS provide for posting of adequate number of doctors including specialist in the CHCs. The manpower planning for this purpose is a core activity in the process of upgradation of the CHCs to the IPHS. Further, the role of the community organisations in monitoring the performance of doctors in the village hospitals is envisaged to be institutionalized with the Rogi Kalyan Samitis which would increase the accountability in the work of the medical staff posted at the hospital. A Task Force has been constituted to examine the feasibility of short term courses in medicine for creating a cadre of Health Professionals for rendering basic primary Health care and suggest various schemes which would increase the availability of doctors in the rural areas. The availability of medicines in the Subcentres, PHCs and CHCs is also being augmented as part of upgradation of the services in the various primary health facilities in the country. Additional drugs including AYUSH medicines are being made available at all the centres. A basic drug kits is also being made available to the trained Accredited Social Health Activist.

(d) The NRHM is an umbrella programme of the Ministry which subsumes the existing initiatives of the health sector and also seeks to introduce intersectoral convergence across other departments of the Government. The existing programmes and schemes of the Ministry like the RCH II, Vertical Disease Control Programmes, Routine Immunisation etc. are incorporated within the Mission. The existing evaluation and monitoring protocols of these schemes are being rationalised into a single MIS which will be used to monitor the NRHM. The first year is the preparatory phase of the Mission during which the institutions of the Mission are being put into place. The monitoring of progress in this regard is being done through periodic reviews and orientation workshops in which the concerned officers of the State Government are invited for discussion and follow up. The detailed MIS for the Mission is meanwhile being prepared.
